Dr. Catherine Compton Appointed as Chief Medical Officer at CareSouth Carolina

Dr. Catherine Compton

CareSouth Carolina announces the appointment of Catherine Compton, D.O., as its new Chief Medical Officer (CMO). Dr. Compton will be succeeding Dr. Stephen L. Smith, who is stepping down from the CMO position but will continue to see patients at the Rosa Lee Gerald office in Society Hill.

A native of Wichita, Kansas, Dr. Compton brings a wealth of experience and a passion for holistic medicine to her new role. Graduating from the Edward Via College of Osteopathic Medicine in Spartanburg, S.C., Dr. Compton has been a dedicated member of the CareSouth Carolina team since 2022. Her commitment to patient care and comprehensive approach to medicine make her an ideal candidate to lead the organization as CMO.

"As we were conducting this search, I was having a hard time finding someone who we felt aligned well with the values and standards we have at CareSouth Carolina," Dr. Smith said. "One day, I was speaking with George General, Site Administrator at Bishopville, and we began talking about Dr. Compton and I'll never forget the words he said to me: 'Dr. Compton is the real deal.'"

As Chief Medical Officer, Dr. Compton plans to continue to promote CareSouth Carolina's mission to "enhance the health and wellbeing of everyone."

"I love the mission of the organization and the care that we give to patients," Dr. Compton said. "Once I started working at CareSouth Carolina, I knew it was a place that I wanted to make my home. I want to work to promote increased access to care and help continue to grow CareSouth Carolina."
